THIS AND THAT

Comments on Anything and Everything for the Week

By Norman W. Ralston

The Impossible

PEOPLE laugh and call other crazy when they venture to suggest something is going to happen that appears to their practical mind to be "crazy." Yet now three fliers, two Germans and an Irishman, have apparently accomplished what was regarded as "impossible" not long ago, a flight from Europe to this side of the water over the North Atlantic, which is always more or less storm-ridden. Even an effort by any young man like Lindbergh to accomplish what he did in his solo flight ten years ago would have been regarded as suicidal. But the world moves on. Ten years from now we may all be flying over the ocean. Sounds ridiculous But what "funny" things have taken place in the last decade!

A Step Forward

CIRCLEVILLE'S Chamber of Commerce this week started the consideration of an extensive downtown boulevard lighting system, something The Herald has been agitating for the past two months. And there seems to be a practical conclusion among interested merchants and property owners who realize their city is going to be the benefactor and their property is going to be enhanced, that the city MUST have these ornamental lights. There are few, very few cities the size of Circleville in the state of Ohio, that doesn't have them. You can count these cities that have been so far back of times on your one hand. All of which is pretty disgraceful on the part of civic Circleville, when it is considered that this city is in the heart of the best part of the state, and not in the hilly and coal sections where towns are five years back of the rest of the state. Circleville is surrounded by cities that have the boulevard lighting system. Is Circleville to be the rotten core of the round apple? Are we always to live in the dark, or are we going to take our place in the sun?

One Week Ago

JUST one week ago today. The foreman of an electrical crew was working near the city. He touched a heavily charged wire Serious burns, near death, followed. immediate attention was needed in a hospital. Where was he taken? To Columbus, of course. Circleville has no hospital. When that sad fatality struck the Grand opera house, the victim of fatal burns had to be taken, likewise, to Columbus Who knows how many deaths are caused in this city and county because of lack of proper medical environment? Now the city and county has its BIG chance. Frank Berger died and left a sum of approximately $30,000 to the city, provided a like amount was raised and a $60,000 Berger hospital constructed Is the city going to raise its share so this can be made possible? Or, just as well, is some broad-minded and philanthropic citizen of the county going to make Frank Berger's dream come true by making the rest of the gift possible?

Chinese

IGNORANCE brings war. The Chinese are at it again. Over a 400-mile front this week sanguinary engagements are being fought between the Nationalists and Northeners. British vessels have been fired upon below Hankow Thus appear war clouds after a rest of a few months. The Chinese were the first inventors of gunpowder and they've been using it ever since, with Chicago still topping the league, however People fight when they cannot settle their troubles by sound thinking and arbitration. China has never been very diplomatic, especially within its Great Wall. As a result, bloodshed creeps in. Crowded conditions, perhaps, have been instrumental in producing this chaotic condition Meanwhile, it is interesting to note that just a few days ago the United States government submitted a plan for world peace to other powers Thus the educated world makes progress while ignorant China rules with the sword and gun.

Adult Education

AGAIN comes a discussion on the educational merits of public schools Teaching efficiency in the schools is on the decrease largely because of the failure of women

"After the second shock, the panic was indescribable. The maddened crowds ran to and fro in terror. Fires started everywhere and soon everything seemed ablaze."

PROSE AND WIFE ESCAPE ACCIDENT

The Hudson machinie in which Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prose were riding Saturday morning, skidded off the road at the end of the new brick portion of the Columbus pike. It hit the soft mud, but a fence kept the car from turning over or down an embankment.

Mr. and Mrs. Prose escaped injury and the car was damaged to the extent of a demolished headlight and a torn off bumper. A board of the fence protruded through the windshield.

"Becky," their French bull dog, was knocked breathless when a leather hat-bag fell on top of her.

Mr. and Mrs. Prose were on their way to attend the races at Grove City, and had expected to spend the week-end with friends. The wrecking car of the Clifton garage pulled the damaged car out of the mud.

HERTA GREETS FITZMAURICE

245 MASONS AT LECTURE HERE BY HISTORIAN

Almost 200 From Other Lodges Hear Rev. McGuire's Talk On Masonry.

Two hundred and forty-five Masons crowded into the auditorium of the Masonic Temple Friday evening to hear the lecture on Prehistoric Masonry by Rev. Gabriel McGuire, the noted African traveler and historian.

The visitor was a forceful speaker.

He first told of his travels in darkest Africa, and the reception he got from the natives of the interior whom he found belonged to the order. They practiced Masonary for years. He also said that the Axtecs of South America and even the Indians of our country, the Eskimo of the Arctic regions and the Chinese, celebrated Masonic rites before the Christian era.

The great pyramid at Cheops, he said was built by Masons. The Copts of Egypt are Masons and they have a number of lodges in Cairo. The Mamelukes slaughtered by an order of Napoleon after they were taken prisoners were also Masons.

According to the Bible, Job, 38 chapter 4, 5 and 6, and Jeremiah 32 chapter, verses 18 to 22, which predicted that the Jews would come into their own, has literally become true as they are now in possession of Palestine, through the mandate of the nations.

These same people who were hailed as God's chosen, are today the leaders of finance music, arts and the sciences. Of the 245 Masons present, 175 were out-of-town, members of other lodges.

CALVIN PEEVED

RECOMMEND SORLIE

WASHINGTON, April 21 — (INS)—Appointment of Gov. A. A. Beef Cattle Are Shipped Out Of Pickaway County

Only the kid-gloved aristocracy and the high brows will have the pleasure of ordering "T" steaks if prices of beef keep soaring.

The Farm Bureau Friday shipped 25 head of White faced cattle that averaged 1110 pounds. These cattle were fattened by Col. Geo. Florence of Jackson township. They sold for $13.25 on track and were bought for New York City delivery, by Wilson and company.

Nelson Dunlap of Kingston shipped a carload of Herefords to Cincinnati Friday and also obtained $13.25 a hundred.

Tom L. Johnson, of near Columbus, shipped a carload to Cincinnati, and secured the top price of $18 a hundred. His cattle were good and took the prize.

Never before in the history of cattle raising, has cattle been so scarce and it is predicted that beef will reach the top price of $18, in a few weeks. There is a tremendous demand for fancy cattle. The cow has literally jumped over the moon, and prices are soaring. Ham and eggs will be an order if beef keeps going up.

Pickaway Farmers Plant Corn Early

Farmers in the western portion of the county have started to plant corn. This is at least ten days too early and possibly twenty days ahead of schedule time. Farmers predict that it will have to be planted over again at a later date.

In this section of the state, farmers do not begin to plant corn until next month, from May 1 to 10.

COLUMBUS, O., April 21 (INS) —Elmer E. Jenkins, former city treasurer here, today was free of further prosecution in connection with his confessed killing of Clement Walter, son of the city building inspector, in the city hall here March 14.

The county grand jury, which reported late yesterday, declared the evidence against Jenkins was not strong enough to warrant an indictment. Jenkins has admitted that he accidentally shot Walter during a scuffle over a pistol after a drinking party in the old city hall.

Arthur Battelle, Grove City blacksmith, who is alleged to have killed his wife. Minnie, with a hammer, March 22, was indicted for second degree murder. Battelle is alleged to have struck and fatally injured his wife, at their home in Grove City, during a fit of jealousy.

GIVES MINE EDICT

WASHINGTON, April 21 — (INS)—John L. Lewis has mustered the forces of his united mine workers of America and issued an edict that the so-called "save the union committee" and its allied organizations are Communistic and must go.

The order went out early today for locals of the union to "conform to the Union constitution," and expel those who persist in affiliation with the Rebels.

INDICT BLACKSMITH

COLUMBUS, O. April 27 (INS) —Arthur Battelle, 41 year old Grove City blacksmith, confessed slayer of his wife, Minnie, 35, is under a second degree murder indictment today following a report by the Franklin county grand jury late yesterday.

FATE OF OIL KING NOW UP TO LAW BODY

Twelve "Good Men and True" to Decide His Innocence or Guilt.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The fate of Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator charged with conspiracy against the government in connection with the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, was placed in the hands of the jury at 10:29 a. m., today

A verdict of guilty may bring him two years in the penitentiary and a $10,000 fine.

Get Instructions.

The "twelve men good and true" Who will determine the guilt or innocence of Harry F. Sinclair received their final instructions today as the oil man's trial for criminal conspiracy reached its end.

In terse language, Justice Jennings Bailey charged the jury as to what they should and should not consider in connection with the evidence adduced to show that Sinclair gave Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall a $233,000 bribe to secure a lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

Courtroom Filled.

Every one of the 125 seats in the court room were filled as Bailey prepared to turn the case over, and outside in a roped-off corridor a long line of would-be spectators waited hopefully.

Sinclair's wife and brother-in-law—the latter a monsignor of the Catholic church—were prominent in the front row. A number of western oil men with their broad-rimmed Stetson's and heavily tanned faces added to the scene.

The jury gave Justice Bailey the closest attention.

"As you may know, it is our practice that the court decides what is the law in the case," he said, "and it is your duty to accept the court's version, no matter what private opinions you may hold."

He warned against any guess, surmise or mere possibility of guilty and defined what constitutes a "reasonable doubt."

BOMB HURTS TRIO

SCRANTON, Pa., April 21 — (INS) —An explosion that shook the central part of this city, injuring three persons, one seriously, wrecked the plant of "Lavoce Italiana," a weekly newspaper, early today.

Police believe the blast was caused by a feud between the Fascists and Anti-Fascists. The newspaper was said to strongly favor Fascism and Premier Mussolini's policies.

TWO DIE IN FIRE

SCRANTON, PA., April 21 — (INS)—Two persons were burned to death and six others rescued by passersby when fire destroyed a store and a dwelling here early today.

Mrs. Dorothy Wrightson, 72, was so seriously burned that she died en route to a hospital. Her grandson, Vincent White, 9, was dead when firemen found his body.

Stone Statue of King, Believed 500 Years Old Found In London Garden

By International News Service

LONDON, April 21 — A stone statue of a king, believed to be more than 500 years old, and to have once stood in a niche in Westminster Cathedral, has been discovered in the back garden of a house in a London suburb.

The statue was half-buried in a heap of rubbish. It is about five feet in height, and is that of a bearded king, crowned, and holding in his left hand an orb.

The occupier of the house said he got the statue in a lot of rubbish he obtained from Westminster.

"I cannot understand how it came to be classed as rubbish," an antiquarian declared. "Indications are that the statue stood on the north porch of Westminster Hall which was built by order of Richard II, in 1395."

SPIRITUAL REALITY

President Coolidge says, "All our science and all our arts will never be the means for the true advancement of our nation, will never remove us from the sphere of the superficial, will never give us a civilization and culture of any worthy and lasting importance unless we are able to see in them the outward manifestation of spiritual reality.

"We must maintain a stronger, firmer grasp on the principle declared in the Bible, " 'The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.' "

The church's buisness is to make reality a fact and to produce "the fear of the Lord." Why not accept the invitatioin and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

Jesus and the Home. — Mark 10:2-16 for Sunday, April 22.

1. What is the divine purpose of marriage?

2. What constitutes a Christian marriage?

3. Why are there so many divorces, and what can be done to better preserve the home life?

4. What are the chief enemies of home life today?

5. What did Jesus mean by 'receiving the kingdom of God?"

6. What are the virtues of a child which ought to be found in adults?

7. How acquire the Christian virtues found in the child?

CLERICUS SAYS, "The home is the heart of the human world and sustains the same relation to its health and vitality as does the heart to the body. The Christian home is one of the glories of Christianity and we must maintain it, or Christianity will wither and Christian civilization will go the way of Pagan Rome."

LESSON PRAYER—O Lord, we thank thee for heaven-like homes blessed with little children. Help us to guard well our homes, giving to the children our devoted interest and attention, and becoming like them in their religious virtues.

Sunday is the golden clasp that binds together the volume of the week.

Too many times we excuse our faults by saying we might have worse ones.

"God has a plan for me." It is my business to find it.

Religion makes character, personality, reputation.

Church Forum

(Send problems in question form to Church editor; answers will appear in later issue).

1. HAS AN ORGANIZED CLASS A RIGHT TO HOLD A PART OF ITS COLLECTIONS OUT OF THE SCHOOL TREASURY FOR THE CLASS TREASURY?

Each Sunday school board and each organized class must settle the problem for itself. As a matter of fact, a great many organized classes, with the permission of their local Sunday school boards, do hold out a certain proportion of the class offering each Sunday for use in service activities. Other classes prefer to raise funds for class service in other ways, especially by means of a budget.

Whatever the method, it should be adopted in good faith and hearty co-operation by the parties to the agreement. Avoid wrangling. If necessary, give in. "Let all that ye do be done in love."

2. WE HAVE DIFFICULTY IN SECURING GOOD ATTENDANCE AT THE WORKERS' CONFERENCES AND OTHER SPECIALLY CALLED MEETINGS. HOW PROCEED TO GET OUT THE DESIRED ATTENDANCE?

Postal-card notices, printed, with blanks for date and other variables, are far more effective as a motive and reminder than oral announcements, however emphatic, and are well worth their cost. The school's secretary may object to the added labor; but why should he be clerk of the board meeting or the workers' conference. That function has no relation to his task as secretary of the school. Let the conference elect its own clerk to call its roll, keep its records, and prepare its notices.

Where a superintendent succeeds in making service on his staff so interesting and personally rewarding that his teachers count it a privilege to belong, it becomes possible to require regularity of attendance at the workers' conference as a necessary part of the officer's or teacher's duty. As soon as this attitude can be established and the record attendance of the members made part of the story of his faithfulness to duty, the workers' conference, if held with strict regularity at the appointed time and place, will be "duty called" without any notice at all.—E. Morris Ferguson.

"Greater than the task of making a living is that of making a life."

Home Education

Nancy, a bride one year ago, visited her pastor's wife with babe in arms with the sad tale of woe that often comes from living with the mother-in-law. Nancy told how her husband's mother found fault with her and would tell her husband sometimes things that were not true that reflected on her. She had often begged her husband to arrange to keep house if only in two rooms, but he declared he would not leave his mother.

So Nancy felt she could stand it no longer and she must have advice; she seriously thought of taking the baby and living with her mother, but before such a step should be taken she did the wise thing in seeking counsel.

The minister's wife, believing in the sanctity of the marriage vow said, "you love John and he loves you and the baby and he wants you as you want him: you would never be happy apart. Of course, it is unfortunate to live with your mother-in-law. It was quite right that you plead for a little home of your own: but never mind—that will come by and by. What you need now is a little more patience.

Just wait, dear, I'll call John at his place of business, tell him you are here and to drive around this way when he goes home: then you go back with him and say that you love him, you'll go through anything to have a happy home, and some time it will come true—just dream, be patient, and true."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Jesus and the Home. — Mark 10:2-16 for Sunday, April 22.

Soon after the transfiguration the Pharisees came to Jesus with a question—a favorite method of attacking him; the question was, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife?" They may have been testing his knowledge of the law as a Rabbi, but deeper down in their minds was the more sinister purpose of catching him in a trap.

V. 2—"And he answered and said unto them, what did Moses command you?" The question asked by the Pharisees was answered by the use of the Word of God which he later taught was the sword of the Spirit.

V. 3—"And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement and to put her away." They failed to note the religious progress made wherein what was once tolerated could not now be allowed. Divorce today is an enemy of the home.

v. 5—"But Jesus said unto them, for the hardness of your heart he wrote you this commandment." Religious progress often points to public sins, folly and wickedness.

V. 6—"But from the beginning of the creation, male and female made he them." The family is a divine institution and on the purity of the marriage relation rests the soundness of society. This is the essence of Christ's argument.

V. 7—"For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife." Marriage is a warm, loving union of heart and life, a bond indissoluable in time and eternity; there dare be no interference in the affections of husband and wife.

V. 8—"And the two shall become one flesh; so that they are no more two, but one flesh." Unity is the basis of a happy home—unity of interests, unity of plans, unity of souls.

V. 9—"What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." Every ground of family welfare demands that the marriage tie be permanent. On this rests the stability of the family and the training of the children and the whole health and happiness of the home.

V. 14—"And they were bringing to him little children that he should touch them; and his disciples rebuked him." Christ's touch was a token of the imparting of his spirit to the children, and the blessing that went with it. The disciples underestimated the place and worth of child life.

V. 15—"But when Jesus saw it, he was moved with indignation and said unto them suffer the little children to come unto me; forbid them not; for to such belongeth the kingdom of God." Here is the character of the children's rights. If childlife were preserved in its religious essence the world would be saved in one generation. Christian ideals are better expressed in children than in adults.

V. 16—"And he took them in his arms and blessed them, laying his hands upon them." Christ would not only touch the children but he would give them special blessings as indicated by the laying on of hands.

Jesus and the Home. — Mark 10:2-16 for Sunday, April 22.

1. What is the divine purpose of marriage?

2. What constitutes a Christian marriage?

3. Why are there so many divorces, and what can be done to better preserve the home life?

4. What are the chief enemies of home life today?

5. What did Jesus mean by 'receiving the kingdom of God?"

6. What are the virtues of a child which ought to be found in adults?

7. How acquire the Christian virtues found in the child?

CLERICUS SAYS, "The home is the heart of the human world and sustains the same relation to its health and vitality as does the heart to the body. The Christian home is one of the glories of Christianity and we must maintain it, or Christianity will wither and Christian civilization will go the way of Pagan Rome."

LESSON PRAYER—O Lord, we thank thee for heaven-like homes blessed with little children. Help us to guard well our homes, giving to the children our devoted interest and attention, and becoming like them in their religious virtues.

Sunday is the golden clasp that binds together the volume of the week.

Too many times we excuse our faults by saying we might have worse ones.

The Church Invites You

SPIRITUAL REALITY

President Coolidge says, "All our science and all our arts will never be the means for the true advancement of our nation, will never remove us from the sphere of the superficial, will never give us a civilization and culture of any worthy and lasting importance unless we are able to see in them the outward manifestation of spiritual reality.

"We must maintain a stronger, firmer grasp on the principle declared in the Bible, " 'The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.' "

The church's buisness is to make reality a fact and to produce "the fear of the Lord." Why not accept the invitatioin and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

1. HAS AN ORGANIZED CLASS A RIGHT TO HOLD A PART OF ITS COLLECTIONS OUT OF THE SCHOOL TREASURY FOR THE CLASS TREASURY?

Each Sunday school board and each organized class must settle the problem for itself. As a matter of fact, a great many organized classes, with the permission of their local Sunday school boards, do hold out a certain proportion of the class offering each Sunday for use in service activities. Other classes prefer to raise funds for class service in other ways, especially by means of a budget.

Whatever the method, it should be adopted in good faith and hearty co-operation by the parties to the agreement. Avoid wrangling. If necessary, give in. "Let all that ye do be done in love."

2. WE HAVE DIFFICULTY IN SECURING GOOD ATTENDANCE AT THE WORKERS' CONFERENCES AND OTHER SPECIALLY CALLED MEETINGS. HOW PROCEED TO GET OUT THE DESIRED ATTENDANCE?

Postal-card notices, printed, with blanks for date and other variables, are far more effective as a motive and reminder than oral announcements, however emphatic, and are well worth their cost. The school's secretary may object to the added labor; but why should he be clerk of the board meeting or the workers' conference. That function has no relation to his task as secretary of the school. Let the conference elect its own clerk to call its roll, keep its records, and prepare its notices.

Where a superintendent succeeds in making service on his staff so interesting and personally rewarding that his teachers count it a privilege to belong, it becomes possible to require regularity of attendance at the workers' conference as a necessary part of the officer's or teacher's duty. As soon as this attitude can be established and the record attendance of the members made part of the story of his faithfulness to duty, the workers' conference, if held with strict regularity at the appointed time and place, will be "duty called" without any notice at all.—E. Morris Ferguson.

"Greater than the task of making a living is that of making a life."

Putting religion into life solves the problem of putting life into religion.

It is not safe to walk where you are afraid to be seen.

Nancy, a bride one year ago, visited her pastor's wife with babe in arms with the sad tale of woe that often comes from living with the mother-in-law. Nancy told how her husband's mother found fault with her and would tell her husband sometimes things that were not true that reflected on her. She had often begged her husband to arrange to keep house if only in two rooms, but he declared he would not leave his mother.

So Nancy felt she could stand it no longer and she must have advice; she seriously thought of taking the baby and living with her mother, but before such a step should be taken she did the wise thing in seeking counsel.

The minister's wife, believing in the sanctity of the marriage vow said, "you love John and he loves you and the baby and he wants you as you want him; you would never be happy apart. Of course, it is unfortunate to live with your mother-in-law. It was quite right that you plead for a little home of your own; but never mind—that will come by and by. What you need now is a little more patience.

IT HAD TO BE GOOD TO GET WHERE IT IS

Jesus and the Home. — Mark 10:2-16 for Sunday, April 22.

Soon after the transfiguration the Pharisees came to Jesus with a question—a favorite method of attacking him; the question was, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife?" They may have been testing his knowledge of the law as a Rabbi, but deeper down in their minds was the more sinister purpose of catching him in a trap.

V. 2—"And he answered and said unto them, what did Moses command you?" The question asked by the Pharisees was answered by the use of the Word of God which he later taught was the sword of the Spirit.

V. 3—"And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement and to put her away." They failed to note the religious progress made wherein what was once tolerated could not now be allowed. Divorce today is an enemy of the home.

v. 5—"But Jesus said unto them, for the hardness of your heart he wrote you this commandment." Religious progress often points to public sins, folly and wickedness.

V. 6—"But from the beginning of the creation, male and female made he them." The family is a divine institution and on the purity of the marriage relation rests the soundness of society. This is the essence of Christ's argument.

V. 7—"For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife." Marriage is a warm, loving union of heart and life, a bond indissoluable in time and eternit"; there dare be no interference in the affections of husband and wife.

V. 8—"And the two shall become one flesh; so that they are no more two, but one flesh." Unity is the basis of a happy home—unity of interests, unity of plans, unity of souls.

V. 9—"What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." Every ground of family welfare demands that the marriage tie be permanent. On this rests the stability of the family and the training of the children and the whole health and happiness of the home.

V. 14—"And they were bringing to him little children that he should touch them; and his disciples rebuked him." Christ's touch was a token of the imparting of his spirit to the children, and the blessing that went with it. The disciples underestimated the place and worth of child life.

V. 15—"But when Jesus saw it, he was moved with indignation and said unto them suffer the little children to come unto me; forbid them not; for to such belongeth the kingdom of God." Here is the character of the children's rights. If childlife were preserved in its religious essence the world would be saved in one generation. Christian ideals are better expressed in children than in adults.

V. 16—"And he took them in his arms and blessed them, laying his hands upon them." Christ would not only touch the children but he would give them special blessings as indicated by the laying on of hands.

Just wait, dear, I'll call John at his place of business, tell him you are here and to drive around this way when he goes home; then you go back with him and say that you love him, you'll go through anything to have a happy home, and some time it will come true—just dream, be patient, and true."

THE BETTER WAY

Militarizing Our Youth

John Dewey, a leading educator says, "The militaristic movement is well organized, is energetically active, unrelentingly aggressive. It has a definite program and is taking definite steps for its execution. The nature of the program and the steps in its execution are set forth on the authority of official documents."

People do not become militaristic or imperialistic because they deliberately choose to do so. They become militaristic gradually and unconsciously in response to conditions of which militarism is the consequence. Education of youth and the reflex of that education on friends and parents is an important part of the forces which have militarization for their consequence."

THEATRES

LLOYD AT MET

Imagine Harold Lloyd piloting a horse drawn street car through the busy streets of New York City!

Such in substance is the chief highlight of Harold Lloyd's newest comedy coming Monday to the Metropolitan theater. Every Harold Lloyd comedy is known wherever film fans are known to delight in the situations and "gags" enacted by the popular film comedian, as standing head and shoulders above anything previously seen on the silver screen.

New comedy situations are synonymous with Harold Lloyd, which probably is the secret of his popularity with the film going public today. There is nothing duplicated in any new picture he produces. Imagine then, the climax wrought by the many new funny situations in "Speedy" with Harold Lloyd gayly driving a horse drawn street car down the traffic congested streets of New York city, the "Last of the Mohicans," as one passerby reminded during the filming of the production.

"Speedy" details Lloyd's thrilling and laughable experience of running the horse drawn vehicle through the city's streets to save the franchise owned by "Pop" Dillon, grandfather of Ann Christy, with whom Speedy is in love. He does so with many handicaps set in his path by the villian who wishes to stop the daily run of the car, so he could win the franchise by default, and in turn sell it at a big price to the railway transportation officials who are desirous of obtaining it, although legitimately.

GOOD GRAND BILL

"Tarzan and the Golden Lion" is the title of tonight's picture at the Grand opera house, starring James Pierce and Edna Murphy. A beautiful girl offered as a sacrifice—a snarling Lion God held in leach by a gigantic priest—one second the savage cat would claim its prey—then Tarzan to the rescue. There's a thrill in every foot of the film.

"Girl" in the Scriptures

The word "girl" occurs in the King James version of the Bible only twice, once in the singular and once in the plural. Joel 3:3 says: "And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink." Zech. 8:5 says: "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

King Arthur's Court

Dicky Called Away, Leaving Madge to Face Some Hidden Danger.

"YOU'VE solved a great problem for me," I told Lillian as she offered to tell Dicky of the danger which might menace the farmhouse. "Just now I don't want to do any more talking to Dicky than is necessary. He's been in rather—uncertain humor—lately, and if I concentrate on that code I don't want to be upset by anything."

"You shan't be" she promised. "And I'll clip the Dicky bird's wings. Incidentally, I love that mild phrase 'uncertain humor'—in connection with your husband and my oldest friend. He's like a small boy spoiling for a licking lately, and if he gets me riled enough, I'll go out and break off a hickory switch. Ah! there's Katie at the dinner gong! She pounds it as if she were a drummer in a 'caninny band."

But there was to be no opportunity to tell Dicky anything that night. We barely had finished dinner when he and his mother came home from the outing which Lillian so cleverly had engineered. And when he had opened his mail, which had come from the village while he was gone, he made a dive for the stairway, scattering orders as he went.

"Just time to make the train. Must get in town tonight. Tell Jim bring car around. Madge, help me with my things, will you, please?"

He was at the top of the stairs before he finished speaking and Lillian's voice sounded crisply.

"I'll get Jim."

She went swiftly toward the kitchen and I sped upstairs to Dicky's room. The emergency bag which I always keep ready for him was already standing by the door, and on the bed was a big suitcase open at which my tempestuous husband was hurling articles of clothing and shoes.

"There," he said as he threw tennis trousers and plus fours on the top of the pile, "just rustle me some suitable socks, handkerchiefs and ties, and get those things in if you can. I'll pack my dressing things in the portfolio and I can strap the two together while I'm in the car going over. Oh, and get out my racquet and press, will you?"

I have ushered him off on so many journeys that I knew exactly what to do, and by the time we heard the hum of the motor, as Jim brought 'round the car, his bag and portfolio were packed, his golf bag and tennis racquet ready, and he was on the veranda with his traveling paraphernalia around him.

"Are you going to drive me, Madge?" he asked, and I had an acquiescence on my tongue when Lillian effectually interposed.

"Indeed, she's not," she said, "although she'd be fool enough to do it because you asked her. But she's just about dead with a headache and I'm going to put her to bed as soon as you're gone."

"Oh, I'm sorry, Madge," Dicky said with punctilious contrition, and I knew that he had asked me to drive him only from force of habit.

"It doesn't amount to much," I said, feeling supremely ridiculous, for I had no sign of headache or other physical ill-feeling. Lillian explained as soon as we were alone.

"You anointed little idiot!" she sputtered. "I suppose your idea of taking care of yourself is to drive home alone from the station—it will be dark by then. It's a wonder you didn't plan to take the road by the shack. How long is Dicky going to be gone?"

"About three days he said," I returned. "Depends something on Miller"

"Oh, it's Miller," she said, referring to an author who was one of Dicky's stanchest admirers, and who lived in a delightful country place in the foothills of the Adirondacks. "He must have finished his latest serial. When he writes the last word he sends for the artist. Of course, it's wonderful for Dicky, but I wish he hadn't had to go just at this time. I want to see Jim when he gets back. I think I'll have him get some sturdy friend of his to sleep at the farmhouse nights until Dicky gets back. I may be the worst old fuss-budget in the world without any cause for worry but I don't mind telling you that I wish we were safely through [illegible] piece of woods."

THE BETTER WAY
Militarizing Our Youth

John Dewey, a leading educator says, "The militaristic movement is well organized, is energetically active, unrelentingly aggressive. It has a definite program and is taking definite steps for its execution. The nature of the program and the steps in its execution are set forth on the authority of official documents."

People do not become militaristic or imperialistic because they deliberately choose to do so. They become militaristic gradually and unconsciously in response to conditions of which militarism is the consequence. Education of youth and the reflex of that education on friends and parents is an important part of the forces which have militarization for their consequence."

THEATRES

LLOYD AT MET

Imagine Harold Lloyd piloting a horse drawn street car through the busy streets of New York City!

Such in substance is the chief highlight of Harold Lloyd's newest comedy coming Monday to the Metropolitan theater. Every Harold Lloyd comedy is known wherever film fans are known to delight in the situations and "gags" enacted by the popular film comedian, as standing head and shoulders above anything previously seen on the silver screen.

New comedy situations are synonymous with Harold Lloyd, which probably is the secret of his popularity with the film going public today . There is nothing duplicated in any new picture he produces. Imagine then, the climax wrought by the many new funny situations in "Speedy" with Harold Lloyd gayly driving a horse drawn street car down the traffic congested streets of New York city, the "Last of the Mohicans," as one passerby reminded during the filming of the production.

"Speedy" details Lloyd's thrilling and laughable experience of running the horse drawn vehicle through the city's streets to save the franchise owned by "Pop" Dillon, grandfather of Ann Christy, with whom Speedy is in love. He does so with many handicaps set in his path by the villian who wishes to stop the daily run of the car, so he could win the franchise by default, and in turn sell it at a big price to the railway transportation officials who are desirious of obtaining it, although legitimately.

GOOD GRAND BILL

"Tarzan and the Golden Lion" is the title of tonight's picture at the Grand opera house, starring James Pierce and Edna Murphy. A beautiful girl offered as a sacrifice—a snarling Lion God held in leach by a gigantic priest—one second the savage cat would claim its prey—then Tarzan to the rescue. There's a thrill in every foot of the film.

College Fraternities

The usual proceeding in naming college fraternities is to choose a name in English, which signifies the aims, ideals or character of the fraternity. This name is translated into Greek. The initial Greek letters of the words that form the name are the appellation by which the fraternity is known. The name is known only to the members of the organization.

"Girl" in the Scriptures

The word "girl" occurs in the King James version of the Bible only twice, once in the singular and once in the plural. Joel 3:3 says: "And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink." Zech. 8:5 says: "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

THE COSTS OF DISTRIBUTION

THERE is a great deal of complaint that what is called the distributing system of the country, the work of getting merchandise from the producer to the consumer, costs too much Some people think that the remedy for that situation is to cut out the services of many of the middlemen and wholesalers. But to drive out middlemen, someone has to perform the functions that they perform for less money. Many manufacturers of course would say they sell direct to the retailers as needed, than where they deliver a big order to a wholesaler.

If retail merchants can tell in advance about what they are going to need, they may often save money by buying large lots direct of some manufacturer. But even if so, they might have to go to extra expense that way in order to carry these large lots in stock. Many of them would say they gain certain advantages when they buy in small lots from wholesalers and have them shipped as needed, and that in that way they keep smaller stocks and less capital is locked up in their business.

On food products which spoil quickly, many retail dealers would say, they could not afford to buy big lots at any one time, but what they want is sources of supply that will give them what they need from day to day, so that their stock will always be fresh.

Merchants that advertise in an enterprising way attract a lot of customers, and do a large volume of business. That reduces the cost of handling goods per article sold, and it seems about the most practical plan for reducing costs of distribution. When people increase their business on a given line of goods, they are in a position to save distribution costs to the consumer.

BASEBALL ABROAD

IT has seemed strange that baseball, over which as the national sport our people are so enthusiastic, should have so little vogue in foreign lands.

But there is one very brilliant exception, and that is Japan, where the game seems likely to become as popular as in this country. Writing in the magazine 'Asia,' Harry Kingman tells about a high school championship game he attended, which had 85,000 spectators. The Japanese players do not seek to rattle their opponents with their noise, they lose gracefully and without show of emotion. They regard it as a means by which the ancient traditions of courtesy can be kept alive, which is obviously somewhat different from the ways prevailing on many of our ball fields.

The popularity of this favorite game in this land across the wide Pacific should promote friendly relations between the United States and Japan.

THE ICE BUSINESS

IT was remarked at a recent dinner of the American Society of Refrigerating Engineers, that 1000 pounds of ice are used annually in the United States for each person One would guess that in no country in the world is anything like such a quantity used.

Millions of families who used to keep foods in wells and cellars now have their regularly supplied refrigerators By great cold storage plants, foods are kept under scientific conditions until they are needed. Modern refrigeration accomplishing wonder in preventing food from spoiling in stabilizing prices in providing cooling foods and drinks for the hot weather and it is one indication of the high level of comfort prevailing in the United States.

Says Sam Spring is not only far behind, but actually seems to be losing ground.

Old San Francisco

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy the old Vasquez ranch and hacienda overlooking San Francisco Bay, originally granted to the first Vasquez in 1776 by King Phillip of Spain. The prosperity and wealth that has come to San Francisco as the result of the discovery of gold in California has passed by the Vasquez hacienda where indolent ways have not kept abreast of modern progress.

Alone in the great open patio by the fountain she danced for her strangely assorted audience of three men Her grandfather, a young Spanish suitor and an aged servant. Yet no dance of the stage could have been filled with more allure and unconscious charm than Dolores'. Nor could any actress have made a more appealing or definite impression on her audience. It vividly recalled the grandfather's youth, it aroused Don Luis' smoldering passions and it made the old peon very proud to serve so lovely a mistress.

Snapping off a rose as she danced past a bush of great crimson beauties, Dolores brought her dance to an end and tossed the blossom to her grandfather with a smile and kiss wafted from her finger tips

Don Luis sprang gracefully to his feet and catching the rose in mid air took possession of it.

"That was not for you!" objected Dolores

"Sweet senorita," he pleaded ardently, "be a little kind I must start back home now—tell me when

Bowing low, he returned the red rose to her.

I may come again?" His eyes did not leave her face and the rose was held in his slender hand.

"Give me the flower, or you may never come again." She waited imperiously.

"Your will is mine" and bowing low he returned the red rose to her with such a good grace that she flashed him her most winning smile of friendly forgiveness

"Come when you please—you know grandfather likes to have you"

"And you? Are you perhaps a little glad when I come?"

"A little—yes" Then when she saw how hurt he appeared she added quickly, "Come often, as you always have, we both like to have you."

Don Luis could not determine whether her interest in him was mere politeness or something warmer controlled by her rigid ideas of girlish modesty. But to him it did not matter—he wanted her because——

"I shall say adois, near Senorita," he said, bowing low over her hand, "and hurry away so there will be no delay in returning to you again!"

After bidding farewell to old Vasquez, Don Luis went to the stable yard for his horse and took a short route to the city.

CHAPTER III

Love at First Sight

After watching Don Luis depart for San Francisco, Dolores turned toward the archway and noticed that two men were observing her from the private driveway in front of the hacienda She shrank back in embarrassment and concealed herself behind a bower of roses But it was too late. They had been watching the little scene since she danced for her supposed audience of three.

One man was Michael Brandon, a heavy set, well groomed, pugnacious individual who resembled a well cared for bulldog that was full of fight and ready to attack on the slightest provocation. By profession he was a lawyer and represented a powerful faction in San Francisco. His purpose in life was to make money, regardless of individual rights or the law he knew so well how to get around. It is not quite just to credit Brandon with all bad qualities, yet he probably deserved the classification as he took pains to conceal the good traits that were a childhood inheritance

The other uninvited caller was his nephew, Terrance O'Shannessy Only fine things could be said about Terry. The untimely accidental death of his father left him alone, and when affairs were being settled he came across a written request to the effect that in the event of any kind of trouble he was to appeal to his mother's wealthy lawyer brother in San Francisco Thus it developed that Brandon settled the estate and took Terry into the law office

Terry was only twenty-three and still believed there were many things worth while in the world besides money, and gaiety His admiration for the vivid Spanish girl dancing in the patio was a case in point

"Wonderful!" he exclaimed, as much to himself as to his uncle "I—I never saw anything more beautiful!"

Brandon shot him a swift glance "That's what's the matter with these foreigners," he shifted his long cigar to the other side of his mouth "Always dreaming and playacting, and never 'tending to business" Brandon's eyes roved speculatively over the neglected rancho

"Why worry about business when you can watch a girl like that?" Terry was more alert at detecting feminine charm than in recognizing a good business proposition

"Humph!" ejaculated Brandon in disgust "Women can always spend money—but they don't help you make it—leave 'em alone, boy!"

When Vasquez returned from the stable yard after seeing Don Luis off on his horse he was surprised to find Dolores trying to signal him from her place of concealment beside the rose bush Following her excited hand waving he looked through the archway and saw the cause of her alarm

Visitors were most infrequent at the rancho, but Vasquez instinctively felt that the newcomers were gentlemen Immediately he became the courteous, dignified old grandee welcoming his guests

Senors! Won't you come in?" he called cordially

As Dolores saw the men approach she was seized with a sudden panic They had spied upon her when she danced and she had a timid fear about meeting them Like a frightened deer looking about for a means of escape she darted up the steps to the overhanging balcony where, unseen by the men below, she proceeded to do the only thing she had just criticized in the strangers

"Welcome Senors," greeted Vasquez bowing low

Brandon acknowledged the salutation by removing his cigar. "I have come on a matter of important business, which I am sure will be greatly to your advantage," he announced importantly, presenting his card

Vasquez examined it meaninglessly. A card meant nothing to him. He much preferred the warm clasp of a friendly hand

"This is my nephew, Mr. O'Shaughnessy," introduced Brandon.

Vasquez again bowed politely

Terry wanted to offer his hand, but a little awed by the old man's grand manner, could only nod; besides he was wondering what became of the beautiful dancer She had disappeared as quickly and mysteriously as the lovely worshipped fairies of his own native Ireland

"We will be more comfortable inside," suggested Vasquez waving his guests into the spacious living room.

As they disappeared beneath the balcony Dolores came down the steps, stealthily, and watched them enter the hacienda. Without knowing why or what she was singing, a song burst from her heart. She had discovered that the young stranger was interesting and exceedingly good to look upon.

The dimmed elegance of the fine old living room was illuminated by candles that gleamed brighter than their heavy silver candelabra in the mid afternoon light. The flickering glow cast beautiful and fantastic shadows on the heavy draperies, massive furniture and large portraits of noble Vasquezes of Old Spain. Splendid trophies of the chase and an extensive collection of arms with the famous Vasquez sword in a place of honor above the wide fireplace made an impression of splendor on Brandon. Slumped carelessly in a big chair he looked across at the stately dignity of his host and announced abruptly:

"Well, let's get down to brass tacks. I'm going to buy your ranch." He twisted his cigar between firm teeth and watched Vasquez narrowly.

THE COSTS OF DISTRIBUTION

THERE is a great deal of complaint that what is called the distributing system of the country, the work of getting merchandise from the producer to the consumer, costs too much. Some people think that the remedy for that situation is to cut out the services of many of the middlemen and wholesalers. But to drive out middlemen, someone has to perform the functions that they perform for less money. Many manufacturers of course would say they sell direct to the retailers as needed, than where they deliver a big order to a wholesaler.

If retail merchants can tell in advance about what they are going to need, they may often save money by buying large lots direct of some manufacturer. But even if so, they might have to go to extra expense that way in order to carry these large lots in stock. Many of them would say they gain certain advantages when they buy in small lots from wholesalers and have them shipped as needed, and that in that way they keep smaller stocks and less capital is locked up in their business.

On food products which spoil quickly, many retail dealers would say they could not afford to buy big lots at any one time, but what they want is sources of supply that will give them what they need from day to day, so that their stock will always be fresh.

Merchants that advertise in an enterprising way attract a lot of customers, and do a large volume of business. That reduces the cost of handling goods per article sold, and it seems about the most practical plan for reducing costs of distribution. When people increase their business on a given line of goods, they are in a position to save distribution costs to the consumer.

IT has seemed strange that baseball, over which as the national sport our people are so enthusiastic, should have so little vogue in foreign lands.

SENIORS TAKE CIRCLEVILLE INTERCLASS MEET

JUNIORS ARE SECOND WITH FAIR SHOWING

Robert Peters Comes in as High Scorer for Upper Classmen.

Hooray for the seniors!

The track representatives of the class of '28 won the first field meet of the season. This meet was every bit as exciting as an interscholastic meet. It was a wow. Of course the laurels will be handed to the upper classmen. The junior class was second with a difference of 59 points.

Every class put forth some material worth comment. Robert Peters was high scorer for the seniors Howard Greeno upheld the junior class. Walden Reichelderfer was a credit to his class. Ralph Jones proved that within a few years, the freshmen would be proud of their track team.

Show Good Form.

Each entrant in the meet showed better form than was ever shown in practice. The time, although not up to par was a striking improvement since the beginning of the week.

This event proved to the students of Circleville high that they are going to be well represented in their coming meets.

Results of Meet.

The entrants placed as follows:

A CHALLENGE TO CIGAR SMOKERS

who say a good cigar can't be made for 5c

There are lots of five-cent cigars, we admit, that don't always give you full value for your nickel. But here's one that works the other way: Havana Ribbon. You can prove it: Put a Havana Ribbon longside some other five-cent cigars. Mix 'em up. Choose and smoke them blindfolded. You'll single out the Havana Ribbon quicker than you can spot a rose in a cabbage patch!

Flavor? Fragrance? Mildness? You simply never before experienced anything like it in a nickel cigar. Because Havana Ribbon contains no bitter, under-ripe nor "flat," over-ripe tobacco. But true-tasting, flavor-laden ripe middle leaves of the plant. And long-filler, at that! If you want to know how we can do it, read some of our other ads. Meantime, don't delay making the above experiment. There's a cigar counter near. Havana Ribbon is also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

RECORD MARKS SMASHED WHEN RELAYS START

Former Ohio Records Broken On First Day of Big State Event.

COLUMBUS, O., April 21 (INS)—With seven records broken in the nine events of the first day of the Fifth Annual Ohio Relays yesterday, athletes of nine states were lined up in a sea of mud today to enter the finals of the meet today.

High school and elementary track and field stars in preliminaries and finals in that division, badly shattered the former Ohio relay records in the 120-yard low hurdles, high jump, shot-put, Class B mile relay, 880-yard high school relay, 880-yard junior high relay, 880-yard elementary relay and the quarter mile elementary relay. The record held by Warner of Kokomo, Ind., at 12 feet five and one-half inches in the pole vault was the only one of the principal events in the first day's program which withstood the assault of the high school vaulters

Winners of the first three places in the high school shot-put all broke the existing record of 46 feet, one inch held by McMillen, of Bellepoint since 1925. Earl Johnson, Prospect athlete won this even putting the shot 47 feet, seven inches. Other winners who also shattered the record were Fried of Lakewood second place, and Dawson and Baumgartin, both of Louisville Male, tied for third

Finals in all of the college and the remaining high school events will take place at the stadium this afternoon. Preliminaries in the college division were held this morning

Two special invitation events in which leading stars and Olympic contenders of the country will take part will be features of the meet today. Ray Conger, holder of the indoor world's record 1000 yard run, who was defeated in an exhibition match by Herman Phillips, intercollegiate 440-yard champion, in the 880-yard run yesterday, will appear in one of the specials, a mile invitation heat, this afternoon.

DERE MOM

Circleville, Ohio, April 21, 1928
Dere Mom:—

U, no this her spring whether is compin fierce, fust one day it's hot and the next it's either rainin or cold. Aint it remarkable Mom?. Mom, I has awful high ideals for my size and I beginnin to think thet they are so high I can't reach em myself.

U, no Mom, I saw a ford the other day with a very striking ep-itaph which sed "if driven recklessly will ast a life time." I thot to myself how true that is.

I was teelin me friends that me had a billy-goat an they ast me if he was ill-tem-peared and I sed, "He aint nuthin else but an Mom you should a heard them laf.

Mom I am goin with a new gurl now. She comes from a family of undertakers. They're the burys, very nice people.

We was havin questions about why do you call yer wife your present wife and it come my turn to answer and I sed it was because her father gave er away in marriage. The teacher sed I didn't have quite the rite idea. I'm glad I hed part of the idea tho ain't you?

I was ast in one class which I would rather have an elephant or a gorilla killed me and I sed well if I hed a choice I'd ruther the elephant killed the gorilla. Laf that off.

I was ast the other day to name a family tie and for a long time I couldn't think of none but finally it come to me and I sed twins. Warn't thet the brilliantest remark you ever scene.

I ast one of the teachers fer a dollar the other day. I tole him I would be a million-air if he give me thet air dollar and he sez how's that and I tole him I already owned six ciphers. He didn't give it at me an I ain't no millun-air Mom.

Some crazy man ast me the other day which way the avenoos run in Circleville and I tole the dumb nut both ways of course.

U no Ezekial was always sleepin and now he's at home sik of the measles an some guy at school ast me what become of my lazy friend that was always yawning an I didn't want 'en to no he had measles cause they might be afraid. I'd give em to em so I sez well he's doin a stretch in Sing Sing.

I was ast what a doctor's report would come under and I sed news of the weak an Mom it wasn't rite. Horrible.

He was namin the lightest work a man can do and it come my turn and I wanted to shine and so I sez well the lightest work I could think of was being a gas man.

I was ast if I fell into the water and couldn't swim what would I do and I sez the first thing I'd do would be get wet. Warn't thet rite.

We was havin in-tell-egent test an one question was shut smells most in a per-furmers shop and I put down thet the nose did. I suppose a lot of dumb kids put down perfume.

We was havin questions on the Bible and one was what was the first thing Adam set in the Garden of Eden I wasn't so sure about thet so I puts "His foot." I don't see what else he could have put in first do you? Another one of them questions was when did Moses sleep fine in bed and I put down when he slept with his 4-fathers. I must close with thet one Mom.

Yur truthful sun
Never untruly.
Hiram Hoehandle.

P S—I found out I couldn't wink at gurls with high heeled shoes because I hed to wink at em with my eyes. Don't thet tickle you?

P. S 2—My report card come. I an sendin it to you. Red it and weep. These teachers don't like me Its purty fair though ? ? ?

Good Sportsmanship

When a game is lost on the base ball field give your opponents a glad hand and thank the umpire for his services.

Many times the loosers will say "The umpire favored your team or you all played a crooked game."

I am sure our umpires are straight and favors none of the teams.

All on-lookers hate to see the loosers go off of the field with a scowl, so give them a pleasant smile and leave them in their glory.

DEBATES

All too few of us realize just how much work and time the members of our debating team expend towards their object — Success. All this effort can be used in only one debate. There is a general feeling that the present practice of having only one debate could be improved upon by having one debate each semester. Such a course of action has many advantages and no disadvantages. It would give the debating team more training, more subjects and more school backing. If we had two debates in a year the school would begin to feel that the debating team was really an integral part of the school activities and would begin to have a greater interest in debates instead of the luke-warm toleration with which most of the C. H. S. students now treat the subject.

The advocates of the proposed practice feel that this is a really live issue and one which should be given careful consideration. Here's to more and better debates.

LATIN

Of all the classes that give me a pain
'Tis Latin that confuses my brain
We translate a sentence, give the construction,
And generally from my grade a deduction.

No we don't, Miss Rains, don't impose such a task,
Then her pleasantness leaves,
She becomes very grouchy—

They may be alright
But I've got to stay home
And study Latin tonight.

SENIORS TAKE CIRCLEVILLE INTERCLASS MEET

JUNIORS ARE SECOND WITH FAIR SHOWING

Robert Peters Comes in as High Scorer for Upper Classmen.

Hooray for the seniors!

The track representatives of the class of '28 won the first field meet of the season. This meet was every bit as exciting as an interscholastic meet. It was a wow. Of course the laurels will be handed to the upper classmen. The junior class was second with a difference of 59 points.

Every class put forth some material worth comment. Robert Peters was high scorer for the seniors. Howard Greeno upheld the junior class. Walden Reichelderfer was a credit to his class. Ralph Jones proved that within a few years, the freshmen would be proud of their track team.

Show Good Form.

Each entrant in the meet showed better form than was ever shown in practice. The time, although not up to par was a striking improvement since the beginning of the week.

This event proved to the students of Circleville high that they are going to be well represented in their coming meets.

Results of Meet.

The entrants placed as follows:

Discus throw—William Mogan, senior, first, 93 ft.; Dudley Carpenter, senior, second, 87 ft. 7 in.; Clayton Young, senior, third, 75 ft. 7 1-2 in.

A CHALLENGE TO CIGAR SMOKERS

who say a good cigar can't be made for 5c

There are lots of five-cent cigars, we admit, that don't always give you full value for your nickel. But here's one that works the other way: Havana Ribbon. You can prove it: Put a Havana Ribbon longside some other five-cent cigars. Mix 'em up. Choose and smoke them blindfolded. You'll single out the Havana Ribbon quicker than you can spot a rose in a cabbage patch!

Flavor? Fragrance? Mildness? You simply never before experienced anything like it in a nickel cigar. Because Havana Ribbon contains no bitter, under-ripe nor "flat," over-ripe tobacco. But true-tasting, flavor-laden ripe middle leaves of the plant. And long-filler, at that! If you want to know how we can do it, read some of our other ads. Meantime, don't delay making the above experiment. There's a cigar counter near. Havana Ribbon is also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

RECORD MARKS SMASHED WHEN RELAYS START

Former Ohio Records Broken On First Day of Big State Event.

COLUMBUS, O., April 21 (INS)—With seven records broken in the nine events of the first day of the Fifth Annual Ohio Relays yesterday, athletes of nine states were lined up in a sea of mud today to enter the finals of the meet today.

High school and elementary track and field stars in preliminaries and finals in that division, badly shattered the former Ohio relay records in the 120-yard low hurdles, high jump, shot-put, Class B mile relay, 880-yard high school relay, 880-yard junior high relay, 880-yard elementary relay and the quarter mile elementary relay.

The record held by Warner of Kokomo, Ind., at 12 feet five and one-half inches in the pole vault was the only one of the principal events in the first day's program which withstood the assault of the high school vaulters.

Winners of the first three places in the high school shot-put all broke the existing record of 46 feet, one inch held by McMillen, of Bellepoint since 1925. Earl Johnson, Prospect athlete won this even putting the shot 47 feet, seven inches. Other winners who also shattered the record were Fried of Lakewood, second place, and Dawson and Baumgartin, both of Louisville Male, tied for third.

Finals in all of the college and the remaining high school events will take place at the stadium this afternoon. Preliminaries in the college division were held this morning.

Two special invitation events in which leading stars and Olympic contenders of the country will take part will be features of the meet today. Ray Conger, holder of the indoor world's record 1000 yard run, who was defeated in an exhibition match by Herman Phillips, intercollegiate 440-yard champion, in the 880-yard run yesterday will appear in one of the specials, a mile invitation heat, this afternoon.

Circleville, Ohio, April 21, 1928
Dere Mom:—

U, no this her spring whether is compin fierce, fust one day it's hot and the next it's either rainin or cold. Aint it remarkable Mom?. Mom, I has awful high ideals for my size and I beginnin to think thet they are so high I can't reach em myself.

U, no Mom, I saw a ford the other day with a very striking ep-itaph which sed "if driven recklessly will ast a life time." I thot to myself how true that is.

I was teelin me friends that me had a billy-goat an they ast me if he was ill-tem-peared and I sed, "He aint nuthin else but an Mom you should a heard them laf.

Mom I am goin with a new gurl now. She comes from a family of undertakers. They're the burys, very nice people.

We was havin questions about why do you call yer wife your present wife and it come my turn to anser and I sed it was because her father gave er away in marriage. The teacher sed I didn't have quite the rite idea. I'm glad I hed part of the idea tho ain't you?

I was ast in one class which I would rather have an elephant or a gorilla killed me and I sed well if I hed a choice I'd ruther the elephant killed the gorilla. Laf that off.

I was ast the other day to name a family tie and for a long time I couldn't think of none but finally it come to me and I sed twins. Warn't thet the brilliantest remark you ever scene.

I ast one of the teachers fer a dollar the other day. I tole him I would be a million-air if he give me thet air dollar and he sez how's that and I tole him I already owned six ciphers. He didn't give it at me an I ain't no millun-air Mom.

Some crazy man ast me the other day which way the avenoos run in Circleville and I tole the dumb nut both ways of course.

U no Ezekial was always sleepin and now he's at home sik of the measles an some guy at school ast me what become of my lazy friend that was always yawning an I didn't want 'en to no he had measles cause they might be afraid I'd give em to em so I sez well he's doin a stretch in Sing Sing.

I was ast what a doctor's report would come under and I sed news of the weak an Mom it wasn't rite. Horrible.

He was namin the lightest work a man can do and it come my turn and I wanted to shine and so I sez well the lightest work I could think of was being a gas man.

I was ast if I fell into the water and couldn't swim what would I do and I sez the first thing I'd do would be get wet. Warn't thet rite.

We was hevin in-tell-egent test an one question was shut smells most in a per-furmers shop and I put down thet the nose did. I suppose a lot of dumb kids put down perfume.

We was hevin questions on the Bible and one was what was the first thing Adam set in the Garden of Eden I wasn't so sure about thet so I puts "His foot." I don't see what else he could have put in first do you? Anuther one of them questions was when did Moses sleep fine in bed and I put down when he slept with his 4-fathers. I must close with thet one Mom.

Yur truthful sun
Never untruly,
Hiram Hoehandle.

P. S.—I found out I couldn't wink at gurls with high heeled shoes because I hed to wink at en with my eyes. Don't thet tickle you?

P. S. 2.—Me report card come. I an sendin it to you. Red it and weep. These teachers don't like me. Its purty fair though ? ? ?

Good Sportsmanship

When a game is lost on the base ball field give your opponents a glad hand and thank the umpire for his services.

Many times the loosers will say "The umpire favored your team or you all played a crooked game."

I am sure our umpires are straight and favors none of the teams.

All on-lookers hate to see the loosers go off of the field with a scowl, so give them a pleasant smile and leave them in their glory.

DEBATES

All too few of us realize just how much work and time the members of our debating team expend towards their object — Success. All this effort can be used in only one debate. There is a general feeling that the present practice of having only one debate could be improved upon by having one debate each semester. Such a course of action has many advantages and no disadvantages. It would give the debating team more training, more subjects and more school backing. It we had two debates in a year the school would begin to feel that the debating team was really an integral part of the school activities and would begin to have a greater interest in debates instead of the luke-warm toleration with which most of the C. H. S. students now treat the subject.

The advocates of the proposed practice feel that this is a really live issue and one which should be given careful consideration. Here's to more and better debates:
